Back!

After 6 successful and glorious editions of (c)ync, it is with great pleasure and honour that we announce that the students of Delhi Public School, Bhopal are organizing (c)ync V7.0: Doing the Impossible, on the Internet.

(c)ync is an annual event conducted by the tech club (c)ypher where some of the most skillful and adept students come together to showcase their talent in various skills like programming, gaming, photography among others to win exciting prizes!

In the same spirit, (c)ync V7.0 will be conducted in which students around the globe will battle it out in 4 cut throat exhilarating events: De(c)ypher, (c)lick, (c)lipped, and (c)rosshair.

R U GAME?

DE(C)YPHER

The only maze with your life on the line, except it isn't.

The original cryptic hunt of Bhopal is back! An event where the participants will compete to find out who is the cleverest person in the 'room.' It will comprise of innumerable levels, each being more daunting than the last which will require the participants to think out of the box. The questions will range from recent happenings to famous incidents of the past, famous internet personalities and even to pop culture references. The students will rack their brains to solve complex puzzles using internet tools like ciphers, steganography, and of course plain old Google.

(C)LIPPED

Where moments become immortal.

(c)lipped is the video editing competition envisioned for the editors out there, who have a knack for spotting the sharpest details out of seemingly ordinary settings and transforming them into awe-inspiring landscapes. The competition pits the participants against each other and levels the playing field by providing several video clips common to all, enabling them to scrap the ordinary filters of the camera lens and letting them show the world their perspective of it – having complete control down to the very last pixel. The event gives freedom to the competitors over the choice of the software and tools that they shall need to craft the masterpieces over 3 grinding days for a chance at the grand prize. The participants will be provided with about 50 small clips of 10-15 seconds each which they have to use in the most efficient manner to form a video worthy of the name “(c)lipped”.

(C)CLICK

The frame is your canvas, the world your paint.

Click is the photography contest articulated for the best of the photographers out there who have the superpower of narrating a thousand words and feelings in one single click. To truly explore the level of the contestant's skills, the competitors will have to complete two skillful tasks. The first will test their creativity and photography skills as the participant has to click a photograph of any of the following types: Architectural, Still life, Wildlife, Advertising and Landscape. The second, the magic in their hands which can edit any ordinary picture into a treat for the eyes as they will receive a raw photograph which they will have to edit in the most creative way possible without addition of any new elements.
